An Introduction to First John

The Author of the Book

“While his name is not attached to it at any place, tradition and history have always assigned this epistle to John. Placed alongside the Gospel of John, of which there is no question of authorship, this epistle bears very striking resemblances in several ways. He emphasizes Christ as the Son of God, says much about love, faith, and the life of God in Christ, and refers to the work of the Holy Spirit, much as he did in his gospel.” (William S. Deal, Baker’s Pictorial Introduction to the Bible, 408)

There are many similarities between the gospel of John and this book. For example, there are several distinctive words which are common to both books: beginning, light, love and abide.

There are also several phrases which are common to both books:

- “To do truth” (1:6; John 3:21).
- “To walk in darkness” (2:11; John 8:12).
- “Children of God” (3:2; John 11:52).
- “To be born of God” (3:9; John 1:13).
- “Children of the devil” (3:10; John 8:44).
- “To pass from death to life” (3:14; John 5:24).
- “The Spirit of truth” (4:6; John 14:17; 15:26; 16:13).
- “The only begotten Son” (4:9; John 3:16,18).
- “No man has ever seen God” (4:12; John 1:18).
- “The Savior of the world” (4:14; John 4:42).
- “The water and the blood” (5:6; John 19:34).

Those to Whom the Book Was Written

“There is no address in the opening chapter, as in most epistles. His oft-repeated references to ‘my little children’ and ‘my children’ make it evident he refers to Christians. It could have been a local congregation or church with which he was most familiar (2:19) to which he wrote. But this could also refer to the...church as a whole.” (Deal, 407)

“There are several things that indicate to us from a reasonable point of view that John was writing to the churches of Asia Minor. In the first place, in the Revelation given to him by Jesus, he specifically addressed seven of the churches of Asia. In the second place, he had been associated with the church at Ephesus. In the third place, it was the churches of Asia who were being stirred by the false religion of the Gnostics with which John deals at length in the first letter. It was not written, apparently, to any particular local church, but had in mind likely a group of churches. The fact that John warned against idols (5:21), combined with the fact that there is little reference to the Old Testament in the epistle, is an indication that the readers were perhaps largely Gentile Christians.” (Roy Cogdill, The New Testament Book-by-Book, 174)

The Time and Place of Writing

“First John was probably written in Ephesus after the Gospel of John, but the date cannot be fixed with certainty. No persecution is mentioned, suggesting a date prior to A.D. 95 when persecution broke out near the end of the Roman emperor Domitian’s reign (A.D. 81-96).” (Nelson’s Complete Book of Bible Maps & Charts, 467)

Why This Book Was Written

This book was written to address opposition within the church to Christ and the church by false teachers who promoted the doctrine of gnosticism. Gnosticism was a religious and philosophical doctrine which mixed doctrines of Christ with Jewish and oriental doctrines. It pretended to have some sort of mysterious knowledge (Greek: gnosis) of divine matters.

“Gnosticism was a philosophy of religion rather than a single system. It was built on the premise that spirit is good, that matter is evil, and that the two can have no enduring relation with each other. Salvation consists of escape from the realm of matter into the realm of the spirit. The means of this escape are numerous. Chief among them is knowledge by which man can rise above the earth-bound chains of matter into the heavenly apprehension of truth. This knowledge, or gnosis, to use the Greek term which gave the philosophy its name, could be attained only by those who were initiated into the inner secrets of the group. The teaching of the Gnostics was from an unorganized but cohesive cult, bound together by common rites and by common thinking rather than by officers and societies.” (Merrill C. Tenney, New Testament Survey, 375)

There were basically three types of gnostics. The Ebionites, followers of Ebion, denied the deity of Christ teaching that He was merely a creature. The Docetists, who denied the humanity of Christ teaching that He was merely a visionary being, a phantom, void of human nature and had not come in the flesh. The Cerinthians, followers of Cerinthus, denied the union of the two natures of Christ prior to His baptism.

“The best statement of the purpose of the First Epistle of John is found within the letter itself in these words, ‘These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God’ (5:13). This purpose in the epistle is best served by the effort that John makes to define the nature of Jesus Christ as the Son of God, that He may be set forth correctly in the face of heresies or false teachings which were afflicting the church near the end of the First Century.” (Cogdill, 174).

Why This Book Was Written

A prominent theme in this epistle is love—the word appears more than thirty-five times in the epistle. The apostle uses the example of Cain to illustrate what love is not: hatred is murdering in spirit, and it arises from the worldly sphere of death. John then uses the example of Christ to illustrate what love is: love is practiced in self-sacrifice, not mere profession. This practical expression of love results in assurance before God and answered prayers because the believer is walking in obedience to God’s commands to believe in Christ and love one another.” (Nelson’s, 467, 469)

“First John is an Epistle of assurance. The phrase ‘we know’ occurs thirteen times (2:3, 5, 29; 3:14, 16, 19, 24; 4:13, 16; 5:15, 18, 19, 20). In fact, cognates of the verb ‘to know’ appear at least forty times. Whereas the Gospel was written to create faith and life (John 20:31), the Epistle was penned to give certainty of faith and the possession of eternal life...(5:13)...The book contains a classic description of the concept of worldliness (2:15-17).” (Gromacki, 370-371)

Key Passage: Verses 15-17

“Do not love the world or the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world—the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life—is not of the Father but is of the world. And the world is passing away, and the lust of it; but he who does the will of God abides forever.”
